Tim O’Keeffe, Chief Executive Officer (CEO), represents the third-generation of management for Symmons. In 2002, Mr. O’Keeffe began his career at Symmons in the technology department developing web and software programs for the company. After successfully implementing business software for Symmons, he moved to the Design Studio business, the company’s custom design service operation. During his management of the Design Studio business, Symmons created custom product for luxury hospitality properties across the country. Once the Design Studio program was operating successfully, Mr. O’Keeffe briefly managed the Marketing department before he was promoted to Executive Vice President (EVP).

In his role as EVP, Mr. O’Keeffe was responsible for the day to day activities of the sales, operations, engineering and marketing departments. In 2010, he was appointed CEO of Symmons Industries and leads the company in new business development, product innovation and strategic planning.

Mr. O’Keeffe holds a Bachelor of Arts degree from Bates College in Maine. He resides in Hingham, Massachusetts with his wife Sue and his two daughters.
