Lindsey Pollak is the leading expert on the millennial generation and today's multigenerational workplace. Often called a "translator," she advises both young professionals looking to succeed in today's work environment and the organizations that want to recruit, retain and engage them.

Her new book, "The Remix: How to Lead and Succeed in the Multigenerational Workplace", was published by HarperCollins in May 2019.

Ms. Pollak is also the New York Times bestselling author of "Becoming the Boss: New Rules for the Next Generation of Leaders" and "Getting from College to Career: Your Essential Guide to Succeeding in the Real World".

Her speaking audiences and consulting clients have included over 250 corporations, law firms, conferences and universities, including Citi, Estee Lauder, GE, JP Morgan, LinkedIn, PwC, Shearman & Sterling, Yale, Harvard, Wharton and Stanford. Her advice and opinions have appeared in such media outlets as The TODAY Show, The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, CNN and NPR.

She is a graduate of Yale University and is based in New York City.
