Pam Taylor, a partner in the antitrust practice at Jones Day, has more than 25 years of experience in antitrust and competition law, including the antitrust aspects of mergers, joint ventures, and government investigations. She represents clients in government antitrust investigations and enforcement actions before the Federal Trade Commission and the Department of Justice Antitrust Division.

Taylor has provided antitrust advice to trade associations, global companies on their distribution strategies for the United States, and other companies on antitrust issues with customers, suppliers and competitors. She has advised global manufacturers and distributors across a wide range of industries, including aerospace and defense, automotive, consumer products, chemicals, technology, food products, mining, and steel.

Her practice counsels on Hart-Scott-Rodino premerger notification requirements, joint ventures and strategic alliances, pricing and price discrimination, marketing practices, distribution issues, and dealer terminations. Her experience involves matters in pharmaceutical, medical devices, hospital products, and veterinary products businesses. Among her clients are Abbott Laboratories, Baxter International, Boehringer Ingelheim, Cardinal Health, Hill-Rom, Leggett & Platt, and Zekelman Industries.

Taylor is a member of the Illinois State Bar Association and serves on the board of the Legal Aid Society.
