Connor Lokar, senior forecaster and senior economic consulting speaker with ITR Economics, delivers practical economic intelligence with charm and candor. He specializes in construction and industrial markets, but works with businesses across all industries, helping them grow revenue and remain profitable through an ever-changing business cycle.

Lokar emphasizes the applicability of economic intelligence and calls his audiences to action. He has been presenting economic keynotes, workshops and webinars across North America since joining ITR Economics in 2014. He successfully educates his audiences with his quick wit and knack for storytelling. Thousands of business leaders have enjoyed his dynamic approach; whether at intimate executive retreats or standing-room-only keynotes, he shares insights with authority, accuracy and humor.

When not on stage, Lokar contributes his economic expertise as a trusted advisor, consulting directly with management teams of large and small firms. ITR's clients meet with Lokar at critical planning junctures to ensure their strategic plans, goals and internal initiatives are aligned with their tailored forecasts. His deep experience in understanding how forecasts are derived results in insights that enable clients to make the most of their economic outlooks.
